Brownfields Program - Overview

Brownfields Definition

A brownfield site is "real property, the expansion, redevelopment, or reuse of which may be complicated by the presence or potential presence of a hazardous substance, pollutant, or contaminant," as defined in Section 101(39) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended (CERCLA or Superfund).

The law further defines the term "brownfield site" to include a site that is contaminated by a controlled substance (e.g., Meth lab), petroleum or a petroleum product (e.g., abandoned gas station), or is mine-scarred land.

Brownfields Program - Overview

Brownfields Job Training Program - Background

- The first seeds of Brownfields Job Training—and of the Brownfields Program itself—emerged in the early 1990s, reflecting EPA's growing concern for "environmental equity," later known as environmental justice issues.
- Among the lessons learned from the very first EPA Brownfields Pilot grants was the realization that the communities surrounding these brownfields were not benefiting from the job opportunities created by their assessment and cleanup. EPA realized that these brownfields-related jobs were being filled by environmental professionals from other cities, due to a lack of environmental training among local workforces.

- While EPA had no resources allocated for Job Training during the initial years of the Brownfields Program, the Agency had already collaborated with HMTRI to offer environmental education and training program assistance to community colleges located near Superfund and other hazardous waste sites.
- With the goal of adding a job training component to the Brownfields Program, EPA tapped the expertise of a number of federal entities with established job training programs including the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS).

- January 1995: EPA announces the first Brownfields Pilots.
- 1996: EPA signs a Memorandum of Understanding with the Department of Labor, focusing on job training and employment opportunities related to the Brownfields Program for local youths and adults.
- 1998: The National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences establishes a Brownfields Minority Worker Training Program in collaboration with selected EPA Brownfields Pilot grantees.
- 1998 (cont...): EPA awards its first 11 Brownfields Job Training Pilots to entities including cities, community colleges, universities, and non-profits.
- June 1999: The Brownfields Job Training Program produces its first 100 graduates.
- September 1999: 100 graduates of EPA-funded Job Training Programs have been placed in environmental jobs.
- June 2001: The number of Brownfields Job Training Program graduates reaches 1,000.

- January 2002: President Bush signs the Small Business Liability Relief and Brownfields Revitalization Act into law. Known as the "Brownfields Law," this legislation amended CERCLA to specifically authorize federal financial assistance for brownfields revitalization, including grants for assessment, cleanup, and job training.
 - CERCLA now had language specifically authorizing Job Training Grants under EPA's Brownfields Program—authorizing EPA to provide grants for training to facilitate site assessment, remediation of brownfields sites, or site preparation.
- 2003: EPA Awards $2 million for Brownfields Job Training Grants in ten communities across seven states—its first Brownfields Job Training grants under the new Small Business Liability Relief and Brownfields Revitalization Act of 2002.
- To date, EPA has funded 157 Brownfields Job Training grants totaling over $33 million
- As of August 2009, more than 5,000 participants have completed training and more than 3,250 have obtained employment in the environmental field, with an average starting hourly wage of $13.82.

Recipients of Brownfields Job Training Grants

 Through its Brownfields Job Training Program, EPA awards competitive grants to develop environmental cleanup and health and safety training programs for unemployed and underemployed, predominately low-income and minority residents of brownfields-impacted communities. These programs provide trainees with the skills needed to obtain jobs created by the assessment, cleanup, and redevelopment of brownfields in their communities.

General Tips for Application Preparation (continued...)

Create a Focused Plan and Show that You Know how to Implement It

- · Too much information is not necessarily a good thing.
- Quality beats quantity.
- Do not restate the evaluation criteria.
- Respond clearly and directly to the questions in the guidelines (avoid unnecessary jargon).
- Although your responses may seem repetitious, you need to respond as many times as asked.
 Some reviewers may not always cross-reference responses.
- Address all criteria—if it doesn't apply, say so and briefly explain why. Address each element of the criteria separately.
- Create a game plan for each section in the application. Identify the number of questions presented in each subsection.
- Highlight key words that you will want to use in your response.
- Identify information that you will need to research or obtain to answer the questions.
- For pertinent sections, design the actual plan you will implement if you receive the EPA grant. Be realistic in your planning.
