The Innovative Approaches to Mining Site Cleanup and Reuse Workshop, co-hosted by the U.S. EPA Office of Superfund Remediation and Technology Innovation (OSRTI) and the International Committee on Contaminated Land (ICCL), will promote and facilitate information exchange on mining site cleanup and reuse issues that focus on

- Building sustainability into mining site cleanup
- Innovations in mining site cleanup technologies
- Engaging communities in site cleanup and reuse decisions

Registration is now open to attend the workshop and abstracts are accepted through July 29, 2011. Registration is free and open to environmental professionals in the public and private sector. For further information about the event and to register, submit an abstract for consideration, and/or participate in the exhibit area, visit www.MiningWorkshop.org. The website also provides detailed information about the workshop location and travel and lodging information for the Washington, DC metro area.

WORKSHOP GOALS

- ❖ Facilitate information exchange on an international level among professionals from the private and public sectors about mining site cleanup and reuse issues (including effective methods, lessons learned, and the application of technologies)
- ❖ Provide a forum for presentations that describe current practices and approaches, management techniques, and field experiences in mining site cleanup and promoting reuse at active and former mining sites
- ❖ Enhance international communication networks and promote discussion among environmental professionals
