NAICS: 541620. The FDA's Winchester Engineering and Analytical Center (WEAC) is responsible for analyzing regulated products for radioactive contaminants and samples for routine surveillance and radiological or nuclear emergencies. These analyses require the use of radioactive material, which is regulated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission under License No. 201-08631-01, which specifies that ORS establishes a radiation safety program to ensure the safety of the workers processing products containing (and conducting research involving) radioactive material and to ensure the safety of the general public. Although most of this work is completed at WEAC, some minor work involving tritium is also conducted at ORS's Northeast laboratory in New York. Additionally, one non-ORS lab is also covered under the license is the FDA Center Drug Evaluation and Research's (CDER) Division of Pharmaceutical Analysis (DPA) laboratory in St Louis, which holds a sealed nickel-63 source. The license requires an audit of the radiation safety program every year by a third-party health physics firm. The contractor shall provide the Government with a radiation safety audit that meets or exceeds the requirements laid out in the statement of work attached to the FedBizOpps notice. Period of performance shall be for one base year and three option years. ALL QUOTES AND REVISIONS MUST BE SUBMITTED VIA EMAIL BEFORE 3:00 PM ET ON JULY 12, 2019.
